TILDEN'S EXPLANATION.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY OF IT.

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—The Tribune says editorially Tilden's purpose in putting forward this man Slinnot, is to avoid responsibility in case this explanation, like those already given to the press, should fall to the ground. The letter utterly fails to meet the charges of the New York Times. There is no reference to the affidavit of Tilden that he received from the Terre Haute R. R. Co. in 1862 $20,064. We think it can be shown that in a single case that Tilden received from the Chicago and Alton R. R. Co. the sum of $20,000 for services rendered within two months during the year. Mr. Slinnot has not a word concerning the charge that Tilden falsified his returns for 1863. His answer to the third charge is that the statutes gave the taxpayer the option of being assessed and paying the penalty. This is a virtual admission that he neglected his duty as a good citizen and paid only what the government compelled him to. If he falsified the returns for 1862–63, he swindled the government for the whole term ensuing by allowing the officers to assess all his revenue on that basis. Instead of throwing any new light on Tilden's professional services, railroad, earnings and interest and dividends and profits during the year what he is believed to have accumulated the bulk of his enormous fortune, Mr. Slinnott has simply taken the items which the New York Times has been able to collect in spite of Tilden, and has sought to confuse and complicate them. This is something worse than trifling Mr. Tilden had done better to maintain silence than to appear in this attitude, even by proxy.

Inter-Ocean.

CHICAGO, Sept 22.—The Inter-Ocean regards Tilden's explanation as merely a bald denial of an explanation. It is evidently Tilden's handiwork and he is bold enough to repeat the false statement of a former explanation about the $20,000 fee received from the Terre Haute Railroad in October and November 1862, namely that it was earned during a period of four or five years. In his sworn answer in the case he states that he undertook the work of re-organizing the company's affairs in 1861. Thus the explanation avoids the main point, dealing merely with irrelevant matters, according to the habit of the wily politician, who wrests and got Judge Slinnot to certify to its truthfulness. It is a wretched business the last desperate effort of the man of evil practices and false pretenses, to bolster up his failing fortunes with the public.

The Journal and the Post.

The Journal and Post agree that the charges have not been disposed of or even met squarely.

The Chicago Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—The Times says editorially, the system at of Judge Slinnot shows just what every man of any intelligence knew from the first: that Mr. Tilden paid his just dues in 1862, that after that year he followed the law to the letter, and as his [illegible] was in a condition in which his receipts could not be readily ascertained, he paid on the valuation fixed by the collector, which was, in my [illegible] above the real income. The Judge shows that the pretended amount of income, if honestly assigned and set forth in the Grant press, were never received, with the exception of $1,300 which was entered on the income taxed. A more scandalous perversion of facts has never been fastened upon a public libeller than this brought home to the Bliss papers; that the most abject confession it can make will not relieve it of the terrible and detestable [illegible] of deceit man; that the scoundrels who made up the pretended returns and the press publishing them know they are quarantly lies, there cannot be a shadow of a doubt, for without the authoritative production of Judge Slinnot the very document from which the main [illegible] of the invention, the answer in the Terre Haute suit, showed the exact reverse of the case.

The World

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The World says the campaign of calumny set afloat by the Times under the direction of decoy Bliss, and by bed rock Chandler, the official head of the Republican party of reform, is a crime of course, a crime against society, decency and the laws; but it is worse than a crime, it is a [illegible] The whole [illegible] out of the Republican party by its organs of the administration has been the charge that Tilden, fourteen years ago, unwittingly, willfully and wickedly committed perjury in [illegible] his returns under the income tax. The Republican [illegible] have not attempted to deny that the administration of the affairs of this country by their party during all these fourteen years has [illegible] led in national disgrace and individual ruin without parallel in our history. They have not attempted to deny that the public service, under their sway, has become hopelessly corrupt and [illegible]. They have not attempted to deny that it is impossible for them to make their party face of Grant and Grantism, the Chamberlains, the Pattersons, the Slinnots and the Pattersons in the South, of the Ben Butlers, Logans and Mortons in the North. They have not attempted to deny that under their control taxes have increased and income shrunk all over the country, until the burden of supporting the wasteful government was driving out all his enterprises and reducing the laborer to despair. They have had only one thing to plead; namely the popular demand for complete change in every department of the administration, and for a complete departure in methods and spirit of the public service—namely, that Governor Tilden committed perjury fourteen years ago and swindled the treasury of the country. Upon the establishment of this monstrous charge, brought in the crisis of a [illegible] political contest, against a citizen who for three score years had lived in honor and good repute in the commercial metropolis of this country, honored and applauded by the authors [illegible] lives of the miserable slander. All these are scandalous and wicked things for the organs of a great political party to have done. It is also a stupid and silly thing to have done. To abuse the plaintiff's attorney may be a clever device in putting a case before a petty court; it is senseless and scandalous device where the case involves the welfare of a nation, and the tribunal is the conscience and the common sense of 40,000,000 people.

The Sun

The Sun says: "The document which we publish this morning from Judge Slinnot, with a letter from Hewitt, completely explodes the absurd calumny which has been set on foot against Gov. Tilden in reference to his income tax in the year 1862. Taking up the different items stated by the Times, amounting in the aggregate to $100,000, Judge Slinnot shows most of them entirely destitute of truth: that Tilden was not employed in that year by the corporations, as alleged by the Times, and had received nothing whatever from them: that out of thirteen different items three were purely fictitious: that one item of $20,000 was true only to the extent of $10,000, and that the other two items of $10,000 each were true; but that the money was mostly earned in years before the income tax was imposed and accordingly was not subject to taxation, and finally he [illegible] that after deducting interest and losses which occurred during that year Tilden's whole income was only $7,136 and no more. This disposes of the allegation both of fraud and perjury, and it [illegible] the Times in a very unenviable position as having made charges of such gravity without any foundation, or any person other than the investigation and the ingenuity of their authors. The fac simile of Tilden's income return published by the Times indicates very clearly the conspiracy against Tilden on the part of certain Federal office holders, in which they use their powers as agents of the government to propagate false and groundless charges against an eminent citizen, simply because he has been nominated as a candidate for President.

The Express.

The Express says of the statement: "Let it be read in the light of truth and in perfect fairness as lawyers in equity would state a case before the highest court in the land, and as judges of such a court, sworn to equity, would decide it. Thirteen charges were made against Tilden's return. A rotten foundation the Times built up its attacks upon Tilden, repeating its cry of perjury from day to day. The cry has been spread all over the land and all over the world to the disgrace of the country, but with nothing on earth to base it upon except the inventions of men who call falsehood truth and calumny justice. The worst features of this attack was the evident intent to mislead the public, and where the motive was bad the act which followed could be no better than the inspiration which led to it."

The Graphic.

The Graphic (Rep.) says: Tilden was in the same predicament as other professional men and merchants and capitalists were at that time, when it was hard to foretell how things would eventuate, and his return was probably as nearly correct as that of nine men out of every ten. He may be fairly acquitted of the charge of intentional fraud, and the charge of perjury falls with it; in fact no one outside of the Insane asylum, or "imaginative" shop over seriously believed he was guilty of perjury. After two years Tilden declined to make a return, leaving the officers to fix the amount to suit themselves, and he paid what was assessed.

The London Times on the British Columbia Question.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—The Tribune's Toronto special says a special cablegram from London, England, states that the Times has still further modified its views of the British Columbia question, and now admits that Canada has made every exertion to carry on the Pacific railway undertaking, and has more than redeemed its pledges as regards the progress of the work and the expenditures thereon.

From the Avalanche: Jordan valley produces a splendid crop of sugar beets this year. If any gentleman with a little capital wants to make money in this section of the country let him go into the business of making sugar. It will pay.

THE PEACE COMMISSION.

The Indians Hold a Council with the Commissioners.

RED CLOUD AGENCY, Sept. 20, via Fort Laramie, Wyoming, Sept. 22.—At half past 10 this morning the Indians sent word to the commissioners that they were ready for another council, and the commissioners at once prepared for a talk. The attendance of Indians was much larger than yesterday. The first speaker was Little Wound, who said yesterday he heard something which made him almost cry. He had always considered that when the Great Father made arrangements for the railroad through the Indian country he would pay for it for fifty years. He had always considered this his own country, and when it was told him yesterday that he was to be made like a man without a country, it made him cry. The different kinds of animals he wanted was not for one band, but for all the bands for all time. He wanted the President to give them each year three kinds of rations. He wished all white men married into the tribe to live with them always, and that it be impossible to send them away at any time. Whether you have set bounds to our reservation or not, you make laws and we should not go beyond them. We wish you to give $25 each year to each of our women and children. He wished the white men who are living among the Brules, married to Ogallas, women, to come and live with him. He was willing to sign the papers the commission had brought here, on condition that while the young men who were going from the Indian country, those who stayed should be fed, and that the commission should see to it that rations are brought here until spring, and he wanted the annuity goods issued to them before the end of the present new moon, as the weather will soon be cold.

You have forbidden us to hunt buffalo. He understood there was $25 each to be given them yet in addition to the $25,000 they had already received for hunting privileges in Nebraska when the agency was established here. They had a right to go and hunt; but he understood when the new agency should be established they would be deprived of the right to hunt and he wanted an annuity of $25 a head in the place of it.

Bishop Whipple, president of the commission, replied that with reference to the things he asked for, they are all well provided for in the paper they are asked to sign. This commission will use all their power to secure rations for them through the winter, and he himself would promise to go to the Great Council at Washington to do all he could in behalf of their people. With reference to the annuity goods, the commission could not say when they would get here. The Commissioner of Indian affairs had gone to New York to purchase them. They might now be on the way, and the commissioner would write a letter to-day about the matter. As for white men who were married into the tribe, they would not be interfered with, but had whites who come here to stay a few days and do the Indians injury, would not be allowed to stay.

Little Wound then said he wanted the commission to make paste and lay matter before the Great Council and the Indians themselves desired to go to Washington to see the Great Father. Also he wished a copy of everything said here given to them so they could take it to Washington, so there could be no mistake.

Colonel Boone said the commission had no right to change the paper presented by him. He was glad they had shown an interest in the half breed children. A full copy of all that had been said should be given them and the paper presented for them to sign as soon as the secretary could make it out.

Bishop Whipple said they should select the Indians they wished to sign the treaty and it would be presented to them in the afternoon. In the meantime provisions for a feast would be given them.

Little Wound said the commission had said nothing about the additional $25,000 promised them for hunting grounds, to which Judge Gaylor replied the President had tried to get it for them this winter, but could not. The commission would do all they could this winter to secure them that money, but could not promise them any money certain.

Young Man-Afraid-of-His-Horse said: "This is the country where I was born. I have never made any man's heart feel bad. I have thought the Great Spirit intended I should live here and raise my children here. I wished that the Great Father should take care of me and I should live here with my children and those white people who have married amongus. It will take me a long time to learn to hear, and I expect that the President will feed me for a hundred years, perhaps a great deal longer. The promises that have been made by the Great Father heretofore have not been carried out therefore I have been unwilling to go to see him though I have been often invited. Dr. Daniels will remember bringing back from Washington the word that here we were to work to raise our children. I have appointed to live here, therefore I have never looked about to see other countries. You never heard of me behaving badly." With this he took the pen in hand, and, as he made his mark, said: "That is to signify that the Great Father has to feed and clothe me one hundred years; to give me wagons and cattle."

Red Dog said: I want the Great Father to make haste and send me that man (pointing to Major Hoskins), for agent, also Bonnet and Daniels to assist me.

Little Wound said: I told you before, I must have my annuities within two months, and provisions to last us until spring.

The American Horse said: In regard to this arrangement about the Black Hills, it is to last as long as we last.

Man-Afraid of the Bear took hold of the pen saying, "The others have said enough," and signed and returned to his seat. Three Bears inquired how many years they would be. He thought it should be for five generations. Fire Thunder came up holding a blanket over his eyes and signed blindfolded, returning to his place in silence. Big Foot, who has been engaged in agriculture several years, said, "I am a farmer, and wanted a hundred wagons, but have never seen one. I am the man who is going down to see that country. Crow, with a good voice, refused to sign the treaty, and walked away with quite a show of indignation; but all the others who had been selected and were present, entered their names to the paper, a copy of which was given them at their request.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Nez Perces to be Visited by a Military Commission.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Gen. Howard left here to-night for New York, but will return next week. He has important business with the Indian bureau with regard to the relations of the government to the new treaty with the Nez Perce Indians. It is probable that the tribe will be visited by two or three army officers and two of the Indian Commissioners acting under instructions from the Interior department, with a view to the extinguishment of their title to the lands they now occupy, and to their removal to a new reservation.

Cost of Collecting Customs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The Tribune's Washington special says the Commissioner of Customs, in reply to a letter from Indiana, has prepared a statement showing the condition of the custom houses. Several Democrats have charged there has been a great increase in the percentage of expenditures in the custom service since 1860. Commissioner Johnson emphatically shows by official records that this statement is false. In non-paying districts it cost in 1860 $3 22 to collect every dollar. It costs now in non-paying districts to collect the same amount, $1 65. There has been a vast amount of improvement in this branch of the public service since 1860. The loss on the transactions of customs officers from 1850 to 1860, the 20 years of Democratic rule, was $25 in every $1,000; the loss in the transactions of customs officers from February 1860 to 1875 was $1 50 in every 1,000. Owing to the lapse of time only a little of the deficiency occurring prior to 1860 will be collected, while of the deficiency accruing since that time there is every probability that so much will be accounted for as will materially reduce the rate of all losses in the period from 1860 to 1875. The loss on disbursements during the Democratic period from 1850 to 1860 was $7 in every $10,000. The loss on disbursements from 1860 to 1875 was $5 40 in every $10,000. Of the new districts established since 1860 only three are non paying, and since that period the number of non-paying districts has been diminished.

Babcock Trial.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—In the safe burglary trial to-day, Nesbeship, on cross-examination, said he never had any reason to believe Babcock was connected with the safe burglary, and always understood Whiteley to say Babcock knew as much about it as Adam.

Michael Hayes reiterated his former testimony as to his connection with the burglary, having been sent here by Whiteley to assist in his affair. He said, notwithstanding his evidence, Whiteley was not in New York on the 6th of April. He (Hayes) was satisfied that he called upon Whiteley on the 6th of April by more than a hundred incidents, several of which he related.

Columbus Alexander next testified, but nothing new was elicited.

Mayor Richards, superintendent of police, was sworn. He related in detail the history of the burglary, and especially the arrest of the burglar, Benton, with the books, at the door of Alexander's house. Adjourned.

The beds are laid out across the bay 25 feet wide by 50 long, and will be extended for a considerable distance down the bay. There are 1,000 bushels already planted, and the planting will continue till all the suitable ground is covered.

Boys in Blue.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—The Boys in Blue lighted their first camp fire of the campaign at the Horticultural Hall this evening. The first business in order was the discussion of the traditional pork and beans and hard tack, after which beer and pipes were introduced and toasts, responses and music whiled away the evening. Among the speakers were Col. J. P. Jackson, Gen. LaGrange, ex-Gov. Salomon, Horace Davis nominee for Congress and others. The meeting was very full and enthusiastic. The hall was handsomely decorated, and a howitzer and stacks of muskets were displayed on the platform.

The Democracy held a mass meeting at Platt's Hall this evening, which was largely attended, and addressed by Col. S. M. Taylor and other prominent speakers.

Filthy Condition of Chinatown.

Disinfection of Chinatown has already brought to light sickening scenes of filth, disease and misery. At one location in the notorious Bullrun alley in an apartment about six feet square and hardly high enough to permit a man to stand, were found lying on the floor covered with dirt and vermin, the bodies of two Chinamen who had died there of a lingering disease, while between them the sole living tenant of the hovel was engaged in cooking and eating his dinner. One case of smallpox has been already unearthed in that delectable quarter, and enough has been found to fully warrant the vigorous sanitary measures now being taken. The disinfection will be pushed as rapidly and thoroughly as possible.

Disinfection of Chinatown.

Chinatown has been exercised to-day. The force appointed by the health officer in connection with the police detail are making a clean sweep of the dens in that quarter. No distinction is made; every building and room is subjected to a thorough fumigation whether any sign of disease is found or not. A stroll through that precinct in company with the party engaged in the disinfection would be the best possible argument in favor of the present anti-coolie excitement. The crowding, filth, suffocating odors and gloomy noisomeness of the pestilential dens exposed to observation, must be seen to be appreciated. The large buildings tenanted for years by Chinese are cut up and honeycombed with devious passages, closet-like apartments and subterranean abodes of vice and wretchedness. Through these caravanseries the police and health officers make their way peaceably when they can, forcibly when they must, and are driving the inhabitants from their hiding places and subjecting every nook and corner to the fumigation which during its operation renders the premises untenable. The utter nastiness of many portions of Chinatown that for penetrated passes the power of description. The only wonder is that human beings have been able to support life amid such surroundings. Thus far the efforts of the authorities have been directed to that section lying on the north side of Pacific street between Dupont and Stockton. It is expected that this precinct, which may be considered the northerly limit of the Chinese quarter, will be gone through to-day, and to-morrow operations will begin on the south side of Pacific street, working thence gradually southward through the whole district. Thus far no resistance is offered by the Chinamen, except an occasional refusal to open doors, which in such instances have been broken in without ceremony.

General Sherman.

General Sherman and party went to Millbrae to-day as guests of D. O. Mills.

Reception to Senator Sargent.

The Hayes Invincibles have made arrangements to give Senator Sargent a grand reception on his arrival here to-morrow evening at which they invite citizens at large to join them.

Trotting at Sacramento.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 22.—The trotting race for three-year-olds between Susie Brown, Daisy C and Isaac was won by the former, taking the first and third heats in 2:42¾ and 2:45. Isaac won the second heat in 2:45¼. The time in the first heat is the fastest ever made in California by a three-year-old, and the fastest time this year anywhere by colts of that age.

John D. Lee wants an Appeal.

SALT LAKE, Sept. 22.—In the Beaver court to-day, Bishop asked for a delay of three days before sentence is passed on Lee, to give him time to file grounds for appeal. Lee is sad and threatens, by turns. There is a rumor that he intends to expose more than is already known.

Boss Tweed Sails for Cuba.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A special to the Times from Santander states that Wm. M. Tweed was sent yesterday to Carruna, when he was embarked for Cuba, to be surrendered on arrival there to United States officers. The same dispatch announces that one thousand troops left Corruna for Cuba.

Armistice to be Prolonged.

The Times' Berlin telegram says the Porte is ready to accord a prolonged armistice provided Russia suspends dispatch of officers to Belgrade. There are already fifteen thousand Russians in Servia.

Russian Gold Coming to America.

About one hundred thousand pounds Russian gold coin has been bought for shipment to the United States. More is likely to be sent.

European Grain Prospects.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 22.—The leading grain circular says the weather during the past week has been mild and fine and harvesting in the later districts proceeds uninterrupted. Wheat markets continue firm, the tendency still being upward without, however, so much activity as previously. A few more cargoes of wheat have arrived off the coast and attract better inquiry, but cargoes of California for prompt shipments or on passage are more freely offered and are slightly easier. The market to-day was fairly attended. Sales of wheat were only moderate, though there was no actual reduction in price. Flour was steady, without much inquiry. American corn in dry condition commands fair sales at a decline of 3d.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 22 — Wheat past three days 7s 9d quarters. American, 7,000.

Change of Servian Cabinet.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Belgrade says: Members of the deputation of the army to confer the crown on Prince Milan assert that in consequence of the refusal of the ministry to recognize the action of the army, a new cabinet will come into office on Saturday. The coronation of Milan will then take place.

Senate.

SALEM, Sept. 22, 1876.

Senate met at 10 A. M. and was called to order by the President. Roll called and quorum found present. Prayer was offered by Rev. Addison Jones, of the Baptist church. Journal of yesterday read and approved.

George presented the credentials of B. K. Warren, Senator-elect of the counties of Columbia, Clatsop and Tillamook, which were read by the clerk.

George moved that the Secretary of State be invited to administer the oath to the newly elected Senator.

VanCleave moved to refer the credentials to the committee on elections.

The Chair refused to entertain the motion, and George's motion prevailed.

Secretary Chadwick appeared and administered customary oath, and Mr. Warren took his seat.

Cochran presented a petition asking legislation on the subject of fares and freights on railroads; referred to the committee on railroads.

Myers, from committee on engrossed bills, reported S. B. 10 properly engrossed.

Brawshaw, from committee on judiciary, reported favorably on S. B. 25, to repeal sec. 111 of chap. 2, and sec. 120, chap. 12, justice code.

Clark, from committee on ways and means, reported back S. B. 11, to amend sec. 4, title 1, chap. 57, of miscellaneous laws, and S. B. 27, with recommendation that they do not pass.

Colvig, from special committee to examine S. B. 32, relating to pilotage at the mouth of Columbia river and Coos bay, reported it back with certain amendments.

Jewell, from the committee on claims, reported back S. B. 10, for the relief of Jackson county, without recommendation.

VanCleave, of joint committee appointed to examine books and accounts of State secretary and treasurer, announced its organization by the election of Robert A. Miller of Jackson county, as clerk.

On motion of Cochran, all petitions relating to fares and freights on railroads, now in the hands of committee on commerce, be withdrawn and that they be referred to the committee on railroads.

Bradshaw—S. J. R. 14, instructing the sergeant-at-arms in both houses to furnish the State Librarian with two copies of all printed bills, etc., for filing and reference; adopted.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

S. B. 46, reported by the special committee as substitute for S. B. 14, to amend an act preventing swine from running at large in various counties in this State.

Thompson—S. B. 47, to create the office of State Land Register at Linkville and provide for the sale of lands therein.

George—S. B. No. 48, to appropriate the sum of $5,000, or as much thereof as is necessary to defray the expenses incurred in the Oregon exhibit at the Centennial Exhibition.

Bentley—S. B. 49, to facilitate and regulate the transportation of logs, timbers, lumber, etc., on all Oregon rivers and their tributaries.

The House having refused to recede in its amendments to the Centennial fruit bill, a committee of two, consisting of George and Munkers, was appointed by the Chair to confer with a like committee from the House in reference to disputed points.

Senate adjourned and went into joint convention and took one ballot for U. S. Senator. Being again called to order, the Senate adjourned until 10 A. M. Monday.

House.

The House met pursuant to adjournment, Speaker Weatherford in the chair. The roll was called and all members present but Tibbetts, sick, and Will on leave. Will appeared and took his seat. Prayer was offered by Rev. H. P. Peck, of Salem. The journal of yesterday was read and approved.

That part of the petition referring to the canal and locks was referred to the committee on internal improvements, that part relating to railroads to the joint committee on railroads, and the portion relating to warehouses and warehousemen to a special committee consisting of Stannard, Bond and Holmes.

H. J. M. 4, introduced by Payton for the improvement of the Wallamet river, was read and adopted.

Petition of citizens of Smith river, Douglas county, for aid to build a road from their settlement to the Lane county line, was read and referred to the committee on roads and highways.

The Daily Oregonian.
SATURDAY MORNING, SEPT. 23, 1876.

DON'T MEET THE ISSUE.

The question at issue between Mr. Tilden and the Times is: Did Mr. Tilden understate his income? Mr. Tilden in the explanation he has uttered through Judge Sinnott, has attempted to change this and make the question: Is the statement made by the Times of my income exact in every particular? This attempted evasion of the real issue is a trickster's effort to escape condemnation by diverting the attention of the public from material to immaterial matters. It does not make any difference to the people whether the statement of the Times is exact to a cent or not; but it makes the very greatest difference whether Mr. Tilden did, or did not, willfully understate his income in the return he swore to. If Mr. Tilden can show that all the income he received during the years taxes were payable on it, was duly returned, the charge of the Times falls to the ground; but it is not even shaken by showing that one or two, or three items given by that paper are incorrect, and this is all Mr. Sinnott attempts to do. Supposing that three-fifths of the items in the Times' statement should be incorrect, enough would be left then to make its charge good. If Mr. Sinnott had set himself to the task of showing that Mr. Tilden had no more than $7,118 income on which taxes should be paid, his labor would probably have been in vain, but it would have been in the right direction. The fact is that during the time when taxes were payable on incomes, Mr. Tilden, as his friends say, from his practice as a lawyer, several millions of dollars. He must have had an income during this period, sufficient to do this without paying his household expenses and political contributions, though his friend Tilden has offered to help him in the latter. It is evident to any one that even $15,000 a year is not enough to live on and save even one million of dollars in ten years; there must have been more. It may be in a vague sort of way, Mr. Tilden had a good many stocks and bonds, and the tax on them was paid by the banks and corporations. So far as stated. Now, what were the banks and corporations, and how much income did they pay tax on? To this important question we have had no answer—and we have to say, never will have one. Until it is satisfactorily answered the suspicion of Mr. Tilden will be that of a lawyer, an evader of law, a shrewd and unreliable man. He would have avoided the income tax, if they could do so in that hour of need, but to neglect duty would be to pay as little as he could in honor—but we venture to say that no high-minded man would think that that tax by making a small item of his income. Mr. Tilden must have been left for Gov. Tilden, or Connolly, or even Mike Hart, or sometimes left his eye and be more convenient to the lavish acts of his associates. Gov. Tilden was incapable of anything of the charge has been made against him, he makes an evasive answer to the point of his attorney which is not to the point, and is not in any way satisfactory.

THE HELL GATE EXPLOSION.

Tomorrow the great Hell Gate explosion will take place. Twenty thousand pounds of explosive materials will vanish into thin air in one tremendous pop. The whole population of Astoria and the parts adjacent lie, are going to turn out to witness the expected awful scene, and the saloon men are making great preparations in the way of beer and tobacco for the entertainment of the vast crowd which will be in attendance. An effort was made to induce Gen. Newton to explode the explosion until Monday, at any rate, not to fire the mine on Sunday. Gen. Newton replied that while he respected the Sabbath as much as any of the good men who had addressed him on the subject, he could not grant their request, and the discharge must take place. There are many good reasons why there will be no delay in firing the mine,—of which the best is that the presence of so much confined force is exceedingly dangerous, and it is infinitely desirable to get rid of it as soon as possible. If it should go off unexpected the damage and loss of life it might cause would be incalculable. Besides, there are fewer ships and other craft in the river on Sunday, and the probability of doing injury to passing boats will be less than on a week day.

The visible effects of the explosion will, doubtless, be very disappointing to those who expect to see a grand sight. There will be a dull noise, a slight upheaval of the water over the mine, and in all probability nothing more. Many persons, however, expect to see the water dashed to a great altitude, and rocks sent flying in the air, and to hear a stunning noise.

The manner in which the 1,500 different charges will be simultaneously discharged is exceedingly simple. From each charge a wire comes which is connected with a powerful battery. When the time comes and everything is ready, one slight touch on the key of the battery and the electric current flies to each charge, ignites the fulminate in each charge and the mine explodes. The charges are now being put in place by a picked force of thirty men, and the work will be completed, if no accident occurs to-morrow.

THE SIOUX TREATY CONCLUDED.

The Indian Commission, headed by Bishop Whipple, has been successful in the negotiation of the treaty with the Sioux. The treaty, which provides for the removal of the Sioux Indians to a new reservation, was finally concluded and signed on the 20th inst. The Sioux were evidently reluctant to leave their present hunting grounds, and the scene at the signing of the treaty was not a little affecting. Each of the chiefs before he affixed his sign to the paper, except one, made a brief speech, or some remark. The one who signed in silence threw his blanket over his head and made the fatal mark, which granted his old home to strangers, with blinded eyes. He felt the irresistible force of necessity, but was unwilling to look upon the instrument which deprived him of the hills and plains over which he had roamed from childhood. It is usual to think of the Indians as being without feeling and sensibility, but it is hard to believe that this rude savage did not feel the same emotions swell within him as filled the hearts of the French settlers of Port Royal, whose miseries Longfellow has immortalized in verse. But the wisdom of the removal of these Indians is unquestionable. In their new home they will be unmolested, at least for a time, and if proper measures should be adopted and carried into effect, their condition may be greatly improved.

Mr. J. P. Judson, of Olympia, has been nominated by the Democrats of Washington Territory, delegate to Congress. Mr. Judson is a young lawyer, who was born and educated in Washington Territory. His father was one of the earliest settlers, having been a Hudson Bay man. Mr. Judson read law with Judge McFadden, and holds a good practice at the bar. He is considered a gentleman of good abilities and fine character, but he won't beat Judge Jacobs.

It may not be known to all our readers that it has been just sixty years since the year without a summer. In 1816 there was frost in every month in the year. Ice was formed and snow fell in the Middle States in May, June and July, and corn was frozen to death in August and was cut down and dried for fodder. No corn was raised that year uninjured, and farmers had to rely for seed for the crop of 1817 on the corn produced in 1815.

An editor in an idle moment calculated the distance a printer's hand moves during an ordinary day's work at typesetting. Supposing that 24,000 types are set in a day, and that the printer's hand has a foot in picking up each one, it follows that the distance moved in a day will be 48,000 feet, or nearly ten miles a day, or farther than from here to Salem in a week.

The secret of success as an actor, or conversationalist, lies in not overdoing the part undertaken, nor dwelling upon a subject after it has ceased to be interesting. A good story can hardly be told too briefly and over-acting will spoil the best role.

RUPTURE!
No More Metallic Trusses Used!
No More Suffering from Iron Hoops or Steel Springs!
THE SUPERIORITY OF OUR ELASTIC Trusses over the rigid Iron Hoops, which in former days were the only resource of the ruptured, admits of NO ARGUMENT.
By means of this appliance the pressure on the Rupture itself can be made uniform and continuous, and to the extent required in each case, until a slight inflammation of the parts is secured, and the consequent effusion of lymph which is essential to a healing process, and from this time to the conclusion of the treatment, the pressure, being entirely within the control of the patient, can be lessened daily as the adhesion progresses and the body becomes sound. All cases of reducible Hernia are permanently relieved without regard to the age of the patient or the duration of the injury, while in its action it is wholly free from all the cruelty that has characterized the treatment of the malady with tortuous Metal Trusses from the earliest age to the present day. Your attention is called to the following facts:
1st—There are no springs to press upon or to injure the back.
2d—It is simple in construction, and not liable to get out of order.
3d—This instrument is worn with perfect ease while riding horseback.
4th—The Rupture is retained and the pressure the same while in any position.
5th—It has none of the injurious results of metallic Trusses.
6th—It will perform radical cures when all others fail.
7th—It is worn with ease and comfort night and day, which cannot be said truthfully of an metal Truss whatever.
Experience shows that all tempered spring Trusses necessarily press upon and often disease parts of the body that before were in a perfectly healthy condition. Lumbago and other equally distressing ailments are not unfrequently the outgrowth of such pressure, and in view of this fact it becomes a matter of decided consequence to avoid like calamities, if possible.
Examination Free. The closest scrutiny of physicians solicited.

LADIES' RELIEF SOCIETY.

The ladies of the Relief Society tender their thanks to Capt. Smith for a donation to "The Home" of $40—a most acceptable offering at this time. As the funds for the support of these orphans are now growing low, the ladies desire once more to make an appeal to the public in their behalf. It has been proposed by the advisory committee to try the plan of supporting The Home the coming year by monthly subscriptions. As the citizens of Portland are aware of the good which has been accomplished for these little ones in years past, we feel that there will be a liberal response to the appeal which is now made. Any one wishing to contribute to The Home the sum of one dollar a month, or more, or in whatever way they think best, will please make it known to some member of the advisory committee, through the postoffice; or if they prefer being waited upon, some members of the Relief Society will soon call and receive contributions. The ladies have during the past year, found good homes for six of the little ones left to their care. The following are the names of the advisory committee: Mrs. Henry Thielson, Mrs. J. B. Congle, Mrs. E. Ainsworth, Mrs. Burrage, Mrs. Donald Madleay.

A cordial invitation is extended the citizens of Portland to be present this evening. Ladies are especially invited, and seats will be reserved for them and their escorts. DEMOCRATIC TERRITORIAL CONVENTION.

EVENING SESSION.

Convention called to order by the chairman.

On motion the convention proceeded to the nomination of a Delegate to Congress.

Of the votes cast on the first ballot, Hon. J. F. Judson received 45, W. H. White 1, Capt. T. J. Stump, 8.

The nomination of Mr. Judson was declared unanimous.

Mr. Judson was called upon and thanked the convention for the honor it had conferred upon him.

Ratification speeches were made by Judge Lancaster, W. H. White, N. T. Caton, Capt. Stump and others.

The following persons were nominated for prosecuting attorney for each of the judicial districts: First judicial district, N. T. Caton, of Walla Walla; second, Columbia Lancaster, of Clark county; third, Wm. H. White, of King county.

The following persons were selected to constitute the Territorial central committee:

First district, A. J. Cain, T. J. Stump, L. M. Ringer; second, John M. Murphy, Henry Miles, B. F. Shaw; third, O. F. Gerrish, W. H. Taylor, Frank Clark.

PLATFORM.

The committee on platform submitted the following resolutions:

Mr. President: The committee on resolutions beg leave to present the following declaration of principles:

1. Fidelity to all the principles of the Constitution of the United States and its amendments.

2. A perpetual union of the States, with local self-government in every section.

3. Civil service reform; a restitution of the tests of honesty, fidelity and capacity in the qualification of public officers.

4. Retrenchment and economy in Federal, Territorial and county administration lessening the burdens on labor, by the reductions of officers and taxation.

5. Exposure and speedy punishment by penal laws of corruption and peculation in the administration of public affairs.

6. The private use and appropriation of public funds by official custodians means embezzlement and robbery. Official accountability should be exacted and enforced by the better administration of civil and criminal laws.

7. We favor free schools and oppose any sectarian interference with public moneys raised for their support. A free press accountable for abuses to civil and criminal laws.

8. In so much as it is notorious that Chinamen do not and will not become citizens of the United States, we therefore demand that all the powers of the general government be exerted to prevent the emigration and settlement of this people in our midst.

9. Believing in local self government, we recommend all electors to vote "For Constitution" at the ensuing election.

10. We are in favor of the election by the people of the Territories of all their officers.

11. We oppose the dismemberment of Washington Territory.

12. We most heartily endorse the St. Louis platform of the Democratic party, and favor the election of Tilden, Hendricks and Reform.

The convention adjourned sine die.

The Echo announced the election of Grover in the issue of Friday morning—only some 16 hours ahead, calculating from the time the item was written.

The Senatorial election is over, and now is the time to dress up. Go to Kohn's for clothing.

Exchanges say, "Look out for counterfeit half dollar coins dated 1853, 1875 and 1876. It's the other kind we are looking out for, and without much success." If you are looking out for the nobbiest and cheapest clothes now in the city, go to Beck & Waldman's.

The Senatorial contest and Isaac Blum's cigars create unusual excitement in Salem, and are almost the sole topics of discussion there.

To enjoy a pleasant evening, visit the "Fountain," presided over by Peter Wilhelm. None but the best liquors, wines and beer. The celebrated Brunswick, Blake & Co.'s billiard and pool tables.

DISCOVERY.

Dr. Halpruner wishes to announce to the public that his operations and medicines for the treatment of CORNS, BUNIONS, etc., are all of his own discovery, and are entirely different from any other chiropodist's treatment on the coast. Persons afflicted with CORNS, etc., can have them treated at their residence or place of business by sending their order through the postoffice, or leaving them at J. Kohn's clothing store.

A TESTIMONIAL.

MRS. S. LORD—Dear Madam: I commenced using your Hair Producer about five months ago, my hair being thin and falling out rapidly, accompanied with an intense itching of scalp. Shortly after I commenced using your preparations, the itching ceased entirely, and the hair stopped coming out, and having used the remedy according to directions, my hair is growing thick and strong, with every prospect of being fully restored. Yours truly,

D., corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price, by medicated, electric lightning cream baths, and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice, mixed with a little common sense. I shall be absent a month or six weeks. Remember if I do not give relief and cure you, I shall not charge you for my services or the medicines used. To persons of limited means I would say, should you suffer because you are poor? My answer is, no! COME AND BE CURED. Rooms on Third street, between Washington and Alder; P. O. Those who have contracted Colds should be especially careful, and not imprudently wait until by constant coughing they so irritate and rack their lungs as to bring on themselves a very serious Pulmonary Affection. Let them rather trust their symptoms rationally, and at once, and by the prompt use of Dr. JAYNE'S Expectorant, cure their Colds, and heal all accompanying Soreness of the Chest.

CHICAGO'S HERO.

AN ENGINEER WHO KEPT HIS MACHINERY WORKING IN A SEA OF FIRE.

[From the Chicago Times.]

A shaft of the Fullerton avenue conduit is on fire and five or six men are at the bottom." This was the startling announcement that ran along the avenues of news yesterday forenoon. Shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday morning a fire was discovered in a small room in the works used by the workmen, and in a few moments the entire building or shell covering the shaft and the machinery was in flames. At this time a shift of six men were working in the west drift 52 feet under ground and about 15 feet from the bottom of the shaft. They were in no danger of being burned by the fire, but unless they could be extricated they would surely be suffocated. The only means of escaping from their perilous position was by the "cage" that is hoisted and lowered in the shaft by a wire rope attached to a revolving drum connected with the engine. The alarm was given to them, and they rushed out of the drift to the bottom of the shaft only to see above them angry billows of lurid flame. They crowded into the little cage, knowing it to be their only hope. Could it be possible that the engine was still working in that sea of fire? And if so, would or could the engineer stand at his post? It was an awful moment for them. The chances were a thousand to one against them, but suddenly the rope tightened; the cage began to ascend; it rose, almost into the heart of the fire. The surface was reached; they leaped from the cage, ran through the smoke and flame and were saved. These six men owe their lives to the heroism of John Ahern, the engineer. He stood at his post with his hand on the lever until his face and hands were scorched and blistered by the flames that enveloped him, and he alone was injured, seriously but not dangerously. One of the singular features of this catastrophe is that in the room where the first fire caught was stored about five pounds of dynamite, the amount that serves for a day's supply in blasting in the drifts. The expectation that this would explode and scatter wide-spread desolation increased the alarm. But instead of exploding it caught fire and quietly burned up. A slight concussion would have sufficed to let loose the ten thousand devils it contained, but it responded gracefully to the winning ways of the flames.

Says the Helena Herald: We learn from Colonel Viall that the Northern Pacific Railroad Company is building twenty-three miles of the road on the west side of the Missouri to the coal banks, which will be completed by the 1st of December. Also a section of forty miles on the western terminus from Puget Sound.

Call on M. Rosenblatt, 79 Front street, for men and boys' clothing. A large stock of fall and winter styles just received by the John L. Stephens. No better goods in the market.

The perfect points of all first class machines are combined in the make-up of the No. 8 Wheeler & Wilson. All who have examined it recommend it as the best now in use.

A Remedy that Defies Competition.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters defy competition. Of the host of rival tonics that have cropped up during its long career, not one has gained and retained such a large share of public favor, though many have enjoyed an ephemeral popularity. The reason is this, that whereas many of these medicines were advertised to perform cures of the most startling nature, they have when tested, almost invariably turned out to be of little or no value, while the great invigorant, whose reputation they were intended to rival, has never disappointed those who have placed their confidence in it. It has vindicated in the amplest manner its claims to be considered a positive specific remedy for liver complaint, dyspepsia, malarious fevers, debility, constipation, and numerous other maladies arising from general weakness and disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels.

CYRUS NOBLE DISTILLERY, 1st Dist., O.
CINCINNATI, April 1, 1876.
MESSRS. LILIENTHAL & CO.
Gentlemen—I have just returned from a trip through Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia, undertaken for the purpose of examining the various distilleries in those districts, and I am now more than ever confirmed in the opinion, so often expressed to you, that your distillery is the most complete, and best conducted of any in the United States.
The careful selection of your grain, the purity of the water, the slower and more cautious method of distillation, is what gives the NOBLE WHISKY its superior qualities, and has gained for it the reputation which it universally sustains throughout the United States.
Gratified that the 20 years devoted to the distillation of the CYRUS NOBLE WHISKY, has been attended with such happy results, I trust I may be spared to continue my labors in its interest, and that of its many patrons and consumers.
I am, Gentlemen,
Yours faithfully,
CYRUS NOBLE.

TO THE PUBLIC.—The great reputation which our Cyrus Noble Whisky has enjoyed in medical practice throughout the West and South and Europe for a period of nearly 25 years prompts us to bring it to the notice of the Public of the Pacific Coast for similar use.
Its absolute purity, having by analysis been found to be entirely free from FUSEL OIL, and the improved quality imparted to it by its being retained in store for at least 5 to 6 years after distillation, has given to the Physician a remedy long sought for in his own Materia Medica.
The certificates we hold of its efficacy in the treatment of the various NERVOUS PROSTRATION exists and vitality is at a low ebb, as is frequently observed in fevers, Arctic to our country, of DYSPEPSIA, with its whole train of Arctic troubles, of which of the LIVER and the BLADDER, of CONSUMPTION, affording effective and speedy relief to the afflicted victim, and of such diseases or blood predisposing to the death, are all highly gratifying to us, and we believe we owe it to our readers to the cause to use every endeavor to make it here.
Very respectfully,
LILIENTHAL & CO.,

ADELAIDE'S WRAITH.

AN APPARITION THAT SERVED AS A MATCHMAKER.

[From the Boston Times.]

The absence of Adelaide Munthrope had grown into mysterious disappearance, the evening that Roland Mitchell dined with the Bullens. Miss Munthrope was a slightly built, pale, feeble-looking creature, with a certain prettiness of feature, the chief charm of which was a large, liquid, blue eye almost gray, fringed with long, black lashes. Her forehead was high, and combing down her black, wavy hair, to contrast its ares served to make her angular, sunken cheeks still paler by contrast. She had wonderful self possession, an indomitable will and a vivid imagination. Her habits were all precise, she was methodical, taciturn, quiet and determined, and had a knowledge of men and motives, arts and events, far beyond her years. It had become so generally understood that she was cut out for an old maid that the announcement of her marriage and departure for Europe gave everybody the utmost surprise. People in general thought it singular that no hint of marital intention should have got abroad; but Nathan Munthrope gave such positive assurances, and as there was no grounds for objection, contradiction or dispute, the matter was acquiesced in for six whole months. At the end of that time no word had come from Adelaide to relatives or acquaintances, and Gossip shook her head, while Rumor let all her tongues loose at once. This was the situation when Roland went up from New York to the Grange on a Saturday afternoon in January, 1873, and heard the theories and queries called up by the very singular aspect of Miss Munthrope's case.

It was 11 o'clock when Roland retired; he had let the clock strike one, as he tried for the fiftieth time to discharge his mind of the gossips' stuff, and then sat bolt upright in bed.

"Luck is against me, or I have eaten too much dinner," said he to himself. "In either event, I wish there was a fire in the grate, or that the wind would stop soughing under the eaves and around the corners. Ugh! there it goes again. Of course that scratching and tapping is the result of those confounded [illegible] sweeping against the pane, but the result is as sleep-destroying as though it were a [illegible] For family rapping seances. If I only had a cigar, and if I could only take a [illegible] the floor! I wonder what has [illegible] of that Munthrope girl—oh! [illegible] her and dash her disappearance! I'll do it in a shake, or rather succession of 'em, with the thermometer below zero and the fire out, and rout Bob Bullen out for company."

He prepared for his venture, with that [illegible] lacking courage, that any warm-blooded Christian, outside Eskimoland, experiences before baring his devoted legs to the icy fang [illegible] chilling of the winter's wind, [illegible] when it takes and blows upon the body—" [illegible] ly apt to raise goose flesh and swamp [illegible] In the pause, the wind be- [illegible] th his head and his breath bated, [illegible] a footstep coming along the hall [illegible] ended with his apartment. "Forsooth, and presently, too," said Roland [illegible] "come in, don't stand shivering outside alone when you can shiver in good company within." He was certain that it was [illegible] dulcet brother-in-law's foot, in sandal [illegible] that he heard, and gave him quick welcome.

The door opened; of that he was satisfied, [illegible] he found it locked when he went to it [illegible] and reconnoitered then turning the key [illegible] a vain hope that no one would come [illegible] him the bother of unlocking it. The [illegible] was very light, for, looking to the south [illegible] window, reaching from ceiling to [illegible] floor, of which was looped [illegible] up and apart. The moon in the full was [illegible] and [illegible] almost every foot of the [illegible] bed [illegible] so bright that one might [illegible] an ordinary book in the flood. The [illegible] in the shadow, and Ro- [illegible] continued his gazing.

"Come on, you, Bob! Hurry up; you move [illegible]."

The [illegible] was vouchsafed him, and the footsteps came noiseless on the heavy pile of [illegible]. Roland strained his eyes, and [illegible] saw on the edge of the moonlight [illegible] folds of a woman's black dress, a [illegible] and light-colored shoe or [illegible]. The idea of his being a ghost never [illegible] his head; he thought the visitor a [illegible], and, having heard of the dangerous [illegible] coming one to circum- [illegible] he held his peace. The woman [illegible] slowly into the full moonlight, [illegible] to and the window, then faced about, [illegible] her profile, clear as a silhouette, to [illegible] who recognised his visitor at once as [illegible] Munthrope.

[illegible] standing a moment, then [illegible] herself at the table and seemed to grope [illegible] surface, at first carefully and then rapidly, as though disappointed at finding no [illegible] materials. Presently Roland's diary [illegible] under her hand, and opening it and drawing the pencil from the sheath, she wrote for, [illegible] be, two minutes. Replacing the pencil, [illegible] closing the book and putting it where she [illegible] found it, she [illegible] looked toward the window [illegible] him, and went out, closing the door after. [illegible] heard her footsteps dying out down the long echo-breeding hall, and sprang from the bed with perspiration oozing from every [illegible] of his body.

He lit his lamp, drew on drawers, slippers, and dressing-gown, thinking, meanwhile, that there was something queer about Adelaide Munthrope's appearance in the Grange while the [illegible] and occupants seemed so worried and anxious as to her whereabouts. Hastily [illegible] he took the lamp and walked to the door. It was locked hard and fast; even a [illegible], which he had moved when he had entered, [illegible] stood in such position that the door could not have been opened without [illegible] and pushing it. "Rowland gave a low [illegible] stuck his knuckles into his eyes and [illegible]

"Pshaw! what an ass I am! But is was the [illegible] realistic vision I ever experienced; it reminds me of many psychological oddities I have [illegible] of but never imagined I would ever [illegible] in my own proper person."

So it was he that it was all a dream [illegible] he did not touch his diary but extinguished the lamp and went directly to bed and to sleep. In the morning he spoke of his "dream" to Bob, and declared his wonder at the vividness and order of the whole affair.

"Have you looked over your diary?" asked his friend.

"Oh, dear! no. That would be to disturb my vivid recollection of the scene. If I found my diary blank in the book, the dream would take rank with those absurd ones that every man has gone through, as well as myself, wherein I have found myself picking up no end of gold and silver coin, and never a pocket to put it in; and those others that have distressed me by picturing my noble form parading the public streets, full dressed, except as to the important consideration of breeches."

"Well, let's look it over, anyhow," said Mr. Robert Bullen. "Your description is jolly dramatic, and if we discover that you were walking yourself and did some writing, while dancing a prax, it will be a stunning tale to tell."

Roland produced his diary rather reluctantly, and proceeded to turn over the leaves. Following his own entries, which were few, for the year was still young, about a dozen blank pages had been scanned, when he let the book fall into his lap, and turned pale as a sheet. He looked at Bob, and said slowly and under breath:

"By Jove, Bob, it was not a dream; it was an apparition. Don't laugh at me; but my nerves have got down about my heels. I never supposed that I would be the victim of one of those cursed visitations."

"Let me see," cried Bob, as he snatched up the book; "yes, here is a message, and in a woman's writing, plain as print and steady as though written by daylight:

"I am in Birndale asylum. Come to me at once. Soon it will be too late. A. M."

"That's a call you hardly neglect under the circumstances. What are you going to do about it?"

Roland did not answer for full ten minutes, but then said, in his firm, manly manner

"I am going to Birndale."

"And I, too. If there is a maiden to champion, two knights are better than one lance, or I'll be a simple esquire. We'd better say nothing to nobody, eh?"

"By all means. How can we get away? Sunday never seemed so unwelcome to me before."

"I know the conductor of the freight running into the city, this afternoon, and we can get down on that by 6 o'clock."

"Good. I can get the necessary letters of introduction to gain us admission, and in the morning we can go over to the asylum by the time the doors are open."

Dr. Gurling was delighted to meet Messrs. Bullen and Mitchell. The honor, etc., etc., not to mention the opportunity to oblige the gentlemen from whom they bore letters, and what could he do for them? This supple intendent was one of those smooth-faced, plausible, sleek, oily-gammon sort, that offer civilities with an expression of "fool you if I can, fool you as much as I can," pervading their countenances, actions and speech. He was continually washing his hands with invisible soap, in imperceptible water, or touching his chin with his long white finger as he periodically cleared his throat with a modest, self-deprecatory "Hem-m-m-m."

Roland saw at a glance that if there was foul play anywhere, he would not get much aid from Dr. Gurling to clear it up. He abandoned the straightforward tactics he first resolved on, and asked, quietly.

"Have you any objections to showing us over your much admired and widely celebrated institution?"

"Not at all," replied the superintendent. "What particular feature are you most interested in?" The question also conveyed the sentiment: "If you are browsing around here to find anything more than I want you to know, you might as well bundle out at once."

"No particular department," replied Roland. "We simply desire to look through the asylum."

"Very well, gentlemen, this way."

Birndale is a very handsome and a model hospital for the insane, its architecture is modern, its accommodations ample, its arrangement orderly and neat as wax-work, in short, it gains unlimited admiration from all who inspect it. Robert Bullen was lost in its many winding stairs, branching halls, involved grades and unexpected turnings and twistings; but Roland was a natural geographer, he never lost his sense of location or comparison, and when, at the end of three hours' investigation, they reached the doctor's private apartments and sat down to cake and wine, he knew there was one little wing just over and back of where he was sitting, that they had not been shown; but he had studied the doctor too thoroughly to hint at the omission. When they left the hospital, Robert said, with a mournful shake of the head:

"Wild goose! In the words of Hamlet, 'this spirit you may have seen may be a devil, and the devil hath power to assume a pleasing shape.' There are no creatures but mice in Birndale we have not looked over."

"Bob, Adelaide Munthrope is in Birndale, and, for all we know, more like her, hidden away in the name of law, without public process, secure from even official intrusions, and subject to the horrors that make the memory of Torquemada and the inquisition actually holy."

"If there, we must have seen her."

"Hardly a just conclusion. Dr. Gurling knows his business too well. However, I have a plan of finding out. I noticed a little saloon up from the station a quarter of a mile or so; if there are any tipplers among the guards or attendants, we will meet them there, and if I think money can buy one of them, I'll go to high figures rather than miss a point."

For three days Roland hung about the place, taking precious good care that Dr. Gurling should not run across him or his tracks, and, at last, his patience was rewarded. He found his man, and paid smartly for his intelligence. Adelaide Munthrope was in Birndale; the man had charge of that secret wing where patients were confined whose safety and removal from the world were matters of interest to the doctor. They were kindly, nay, tenderly treated, for their death ended their contribution of revenue; they were mostly sane, at first said the keeper, and mostly went mad after awhile. The mad ones always lived the longest, for the others pined and died in spite of kind and considerate treatment. The keeper could not get her out, nor devise a way to do it, but he could give her a letter and bring a sort of an answer.

"And I'll pay postage one thousand dollars a letter," said Roland, "and if you are connected with the affair and lose your place, I'll make it five hundred a year as long as you live, if the lady is released."

"Make it sure," said the keeper, "and I'm yours truly."

Four days afterward, the man received from Roland all the assurance that legal documents and crisp cash can convey, and received a reply to the letter he had sent to Adelaide, in which he advised her to make a formal complaint of her imprisonment and those party to it. Adelaide's letter was simply a piece of brown paper, full of pin-holes. To have been detected writing would have upset everything, but the shrewdest guard at the asylum saw nothing suspicious in a patient sitting by the grated window of the ward, apparently pricking holes in a piece of paper.

"Thank God for one ray of hope!" the answer read. "I, Adelaide Munthrope, appeal to all who have any idea of the horror of confinement, save among the insane, to release me. Why I am kept in Birndale I know not, but pray to God, to the law, to all honest, honorable men, to give me enlargement, or at least a chance to prove my sanity and the injustice of my confinement."

Armed with this missive, the two friends sped away to New York and laid the case before one of the judges in chambers, any easily procured a writ of habeas corpus and a detail of two clever detectives to serve it. They also swore out a warrant of illegal detention, to prevent Dr. Gurling from playing and little game to defeat their search and success. One Wednesday morning, the smooth doctor was surprised at another visit from Roland and his party. In reply to the doctor's "What gave him the honor," etc., Roland said:—

"We have come for Miss Adelaide Munthrope, and, to make matters brief, allow me to introduce these gentlemen, officers of the court in New York, provided with a writ for her custody."

Dr. Gurling reflected for a moment, and said:—

"Well, gentlemen, I suppose I must submit. I will give you no trouble, and explain the whole reason of her detention on the understanding that I am not to be molested, or the affair get wind to the injury of the institution."

"We can make no such bargain," replied Roland, "except with the consent of Miss Munthrope."

At the doctor's order Adelaide was brought to the parlor, and, after consultation, she agreed to the doctor's terms, and that worthy unfolded the following villainous plot: Adelaide Munthrope's father, Nathan's elder brother, went to California in the early days, and was reported, and currently believed, dead. He was a rascal—it seems to run in the family—and originated the report to save himself from prosecution for a series of forgeries he had committed in New York. He lived in California, and amassed great wealth, and died in the early part of 1872, leaving all his possession to Adelaide, naming his brother Nathan executor. Nathan kept his counsel about the legacy, had Adelaide too easily committed to the asylum as a paying patient, and was living in enjoyment of her inheritance. He had taken Dr. Gurling into his confidence, and had paid magnificently for her detention.

Adelaide consented to the arrest of her uncle, as the surest means of establishing her sanity and recovering her property, but the smooth superintendent was true to his patron and too quick for Roland the officers. He telegraphed to Nathan Munthrope, that afternoon, and the rascal gathered up whatever he could of value, and absconded. Out of Adelaide's fortune of nearly half a million she recovered more than three hundred thousand, and had the search for her uncle abandoned.

She had no recollection of any of the circumstances attending the means of the revelation made to Roland at the Grange. When shown the handwriting in the diary, she confessed that it was hers. That night she had thrown herself into an agony of despair upon her bed, dressed; she woke in the morning with a sense of hope and relief, but was unable to account for its inspiration, and was not surprised when the keeper of the ward in which she was so slyly handed her Roland's letter, and suggested the manner of reply, so that it must be classed with the cases of duality of existence and palpable presence, of which there are many other indisputable evidences on record.

Roland and Adelaide were married about six months ago
